Re: State of Oklahoma v. Tyson
Our File No. 1790-2

Dear Mr. Riggs:

On behalf of Cargill, Inc. and Cargill Turkey Production, LLC (collectively referred to as "Cargill"), we are responding separately to your October 6, 2006 e-mail regarding the State's production of responsive documents to defendants.

We are generally agreeable to the proposals set forth in Mr. McDaniel's October 9, 2006 letter. However, before Cargill can participate in an on-site inspection of documents at various agencies, we must have written responses to our Requests for Production of Documents from the State. Unlike Peterson's four sets of Requests for Production of Documents, Cargill's Requests for Production of Documents are not limited to any particular agency. If the State wishes to produce for on-site inspection documents from a particular agency in response to one or more of Cargill's Requests for Production, then the written response to each request should identify both the agency that possesses responsive documents and the specific categories of responsive documents that we can expect to find at the identified agencies.

We remain willing to work with you with respect to another extension to respond to our Requests for Production to the extent that it does not impact the production of documents at the State agencies. We are not willing to extend the response date to Cargill's Requests for Production of Documents until the review of documents is completed at the four State Agencies that received Peterson's Requests for Production of Documents.

Sincerely,

THERESA NOBLE HILL
